Gütersloh

About ...

Gütersloh is an industrial town in rural neighborhood with major employers including, for example, Bertelsmann and Miele. The town centre, which contains a variety of shops, department stores, restaurants and coffee houses, is located inside the ring road. Furthermore, Gütersloh offers a wide range of leisure and cultural facilities. In this regard, the new theatre should be pointed out, which opened in March 2010. The heart of the old village, which grew up to the present town with nearly 100.000 inhabitants, was the historic centre around »Alter Kirchplatz«. Here you still find handsome old half-timbered houses located around the church »Apostelkirche«.

Leisure and culture ...

Güterslohs new theatre

– a place open to cultural and social encounters – is a central attraction that enhances the cultural wealth of the Westphalian region a lot. The innovative building, which opened in spring 2010, is situated next to the town hall and catches the eye from a distance. The theatre impresses with its striking architecture created by Jörg Friedrich from Hamburg. Its sky lobby provides visitors a fascinating view before and after performances, and during the breaks. The theatre is composed of two halls; the large hall has a capacity of around 530 and the smaller hall is designed for up to 150 visitors. The theatre programme ranges from opera and drama to dance and children's theatre. Classical and jazz concerts are also performed regularly. The theatre has no resident ensemble, it presents various guest performances by famous playhouses. Offering its visitors a truly unique experience, Gütersloh's new theatre is definitely worth a visit!

Gütersloh

has two remarkably attractive

parks. The »Mohns Park« contains an amphitheater, a miniature golf facility and several adventure-playground areas, especially for children. The »Stadtpark« Gütersloh is an important destination for Gütersloh's inhabitants, who enjoy spending their time there for lunch break or spare time at the weekend. The picturesque park, which has been awarded the third prize in the »Germany's Most Beautiful Park«-competition in 2006, offers beautiful landscape architecture, many unusual plants and secluded spots.

Swimmers get their money worth in Gütersloh with no less than five swimming pools – two indoor and three outdoor. The largest water park, called »Die Welle«, comprises a pool with artificial waves, a beach, sunbathing space and also sauna and steam rooms.

At least since the opening of the new theatre in March 2010, Gütersloh is considered the hot spot of culture in the region.

Conviviality ...

in Gütersloh Numerous restaurants, inns, hotels and farmhouse cafes entice their visitors with the Westphalian hospitality that is already legendary. In addition, various inns and hotels provide special services for cyclists, including bike garages, drying rooms, etc.

The Tourist Information Centre run by Gütersloh Marketing GmbH in Berliner Strasse 63 has a comprehensive selection of maps, bike-repair kits and a bike pump in stock for you. It also offers guided tours in and around Gütersloh.

Town twinning ...

Gütersloh is twinned with

Châteauroux in France (since 1977), with Broxtowe in the United Kingdom (1978), with Grudziodz in Poland (1989), with Falun in Sweden (1994) and with Rzhev in Russia (2008).

British Army Base

The British Army took over RAF Gütersloh in 1993 and re-named it as Princess Royal Barracks. It now houses regiments of the Royal Logistic Corps, the Army Air Corps and 114 Provost Company, as well as the Royal Military Police. The second barracks in Gütersloh is called Mansergh Barracks, which holds a British high school, called King's School, and a primary school, called Haig School.
