Museums of History and Culture

Making the past come to life is Münster's speciality. Münster's museums cover a wide spectrum, from the city and its region to the European plane, from Biblical times to contemporary history.

1 Archäologisches Museum der Universität Münster

Münster University Archaeological Museum

This museum, founded in 1883, displays an original collection of ancient small-scale art: sculptures, vessels, gold ornaments, implements, coins and seals. The collection is displayed in four sections: I. An overview of small-scale art, II. Concepts of Greek and Roman culture, III. Neighbouring countries, IV. Sculpture. The museum also possesses a collection of casts of ancient sculptures as well as numerous models of ancient monuments, sites and shrines. These can all be viewed by prior arrangement only.

2 Bibelmuseum der Westfälischen Wilhelms-Universität Münster

Bible Museum of the Westphalian Wilhelm University in Münster

The museum uses original artefacts to show the history of the Bible from its handwritten beginnings to the present. It lays emphasis on the Greek New Testament as handed down in manuscript and in printed versions from the early sixteenth century to the present, on manuscripts and printed versions of the Latin Bible, the German Bible, especially in Luther's translation, modern translations, Bible illustrations, and a faithful reconstruction of Gutenberg's press.

3 Friedenssaal

Peace Hall

The Peace Hall in Münster's gothic town hall owes its name to the peace treaty between Spain and the Netherlands, which was concluded here under solemn oath on 15 May 1648. The hall originally served as a council chamber, and its fine renaissance wood panelling dates from around 1577. The gallery of portraits, with its pictures of ambassadors, was purchased by the council in 1649. The furnishings of the Peace Hall, which were put in store in the second world war, have been faithfully restored.

Gallitzin-Haus

Gallitzin House

Its purpose is to promote the locality and its culture by producing, amongst other things, booklets and leaflets as a record of the area (seventeen volumes have been issued so far) and by maintaining the Gallitzin House as a meeting place for residents of the Münster south-west district and members of local groups. Rooms are available for permanent exhibitions and cultural events such as concerts, lectures and readings. Preservation work is promoted and walks are organised.

Haus Rüschhaus

Rüschhaus House

The Rüschhaus House is both a jewel of late baroque architecture and a memorial to Annette von Droste-Hülshoff.

Der Westphalian baroque master builder Johann Conrad Schlaun built it between 1745 and 1749 as his own country seat. Annette von Droste-Hülshoff lived and worked in the Rüschhaus from 1826 to 1846. This branch of the Münster City Museum may be visited only on guided tours, though the garden is always open.

6 Heimatmuseum in Kinderhaus

Kinderhaus Local Museum

The Kinderhaus Local Museum is to be found in the Stiftung Pfründnerhaus in Kinderhaus, a listed building erected in 1662-1670. Its 200 square metres present the primeval and early history of the north of Münster, medieval history with the founding on this spot of the Münster city leper colony, and the history of Kinderhaus Church from the eighteenth century to the present. Visitors to the Pfründnerhaus can marvel at a domestic kitchen in original condition, an old school-room with the history of the oldest school building on German-speaking territory, which stands opposite, together with many exhibits of ancient handicraft. Schools are offered special tours round the Local Museum at any time. Regular changes of display.

9 Lepramuseum

Leprosy Museum

This exhibition in timbered houses built in 1580 and 1672, standing in the grounds of the leper colony founded in 1330, shows visitors how lepers lived in Münster in the middle ages, how they were housed, what they ate, and how they were cared for.

Nowadays leprosy occurs in our country only as a disease brought in from the tropics and it has lost its terror now that it can be treated by medication at an early stage. Discrimination against these invalids, however, presents a challenge which has still not changed.

11 Porzellanmuseum Münster e.V.

Münster Porcelain Museum

The Society to Promote a Porcelain Museum in Münster has obtained from the Westfalen-Lippe Association of Tax Advisors long-term use of premises for its permanent exhibition "150 Years of Porcelain Painting in Münster". The Society was founded after decades of collecting exhibits and materials. The object is to produce an autonomous porcelain museum with over four thousand exhibits of Münster painting from 1840 to 1990. Changing displays will endeavour to make the public better acquainted with the available exhibits.

Stadtmuseum - Zwinger

City Museum - Dungeon

Built in the sixteenth century as part of the city walls, the Dungeon had various uses over the centuries. It has served as defensive tower, horse mill, powder store, prison, painter's studio, cultural centre for the Hitler Youth, and, until its partial destruction in early 1945, as a place of arrest and execution for the Secret State Police. After several years of restoration it was reopened to the public in 1997 for sculpture projects. As a memorial it now recalls the victims of violence in Münster, particularly under the Nazi regime. Rebecca Horn's installation "Concerto in contrary motion" is to be seen and heard within.

Art Galleries

There is art to marvel at in Münster from over a thousand years, sacred and secular, entertaining or challenging, – there is something for everyone.

16 Bischöfliches Diözesanmuseum für christliche Kunst

Episcopal Diocesan Museum of Christian Art

After an interim period the Episcopal Museum, built in 1864 on the Cathedral Square, was finally opened to the public in 1931. The episcopal art collection includes great treasures of Christian art and ritual items from the eleventh to the nineteenth centuries (sculptures, paintings, gold and silver work, textiles and books).

Since the building was wound up in 1958 the episcopal collection has been mainly accommodated in the Westphalian Provincial Museum of Art and Cultural History (q.v.). Some important works from the collection are currently to be seen in the section on Westphalian medieval art in the museum's permanent display collection. Other works are exhibited in the treasury of St. Paul's Cathedral (q.v.).

17 Domkammer der Kathedrale St. Paulus

St. Paul's Cathedral Treasury

With its unique treasures of gold work and fabrics, the Münster Cathedral treasury is one of the finest in Europe. It ranges from sumptuous eleventh-century reliquiaries via valuable medieval, renaissance and Baroque liturgical equipment and fabrics right up to the twentieth century, though medieval masterpieces are the main focus. Seven hundred works in every artistic genre are shown on three floors, illustrating the liturgy and artistic history of St. Paul's Cathedral in Münster. Münster Museum of Pablo Picasso Graphic Art

The museum, opened in September 2000, is Germany's first Picasso museum. With over 780 lithographs, it houses a unified collection which is unique in the world, and which was further supplemented by a hundred etchings with the purchase of the "Suite Vollard" in November 2001. In addition to the permanent exhibition special exhibitions give insights into Pablo Picasso's pictorial world. Guided tours, slide lectures on particular topics and a variety of other events offer further opportunities.

22 Ausstellungshalle zeitgenössische Kunst Münster

Münster Exhibition Hall for Contemporary Art

Moving the city's exhibition hall in Hawerkamp to Warehouse II on the Dortmund-Ems Canal in June 2004 has made available over a thousand square metres of space for projects presenting contemporary fine arts. The expanded exhibition programme is mainly founded on the discovery and development of experimental tendencies in contemporary fine arts. With five exhibitions a year and numerous discussion events and conversations with artists, the new Münster Exhibition Hall for Contemporary Art has developed into a workshop and forum for contemporary fine arts which has gained recognition far and wide.

Westfälischer Kunstverein

Westphalian Art Society

Founded in 1831, the Westphalian Art Society has been organising exhibitions of international contemporary art continuously since 1945. It promotes modern art through conversations with artists, series of lectures and films, annual donations and art tours. The Art Society has around a thousand members, who support these activities morally and financially, though all events are open to the public. Further information on www.westfaelischer-kunstverein.de.

The Art Society's exhibition space and offices are in the Westphalian Provincial Museum.

LWL-Landesmuseum für Kunst und Kulturgeschichte

Westfälisches Landesmuseum, Münster

LWL State Museum of Art and Cultural History

The Westphalian Art Society has its headquarters in the Westphalian Provincial Museum

Since its foundation in 1908 the Provincial Museum has been the centre for fine arts in Westphalia. It presents over a thousand years of art history, from the Middle Ages to modern times.

The attractions of the museum lie not only in its collection; it has achieved international renown with its exhibitions such as "Sculpture Projects", presentations on the work of August Macke or the great Council of Europe exhibition on the Peace of Westphalia in 1998.

Prehistory and technology, plants and minerals, humans and animals – man's relationship with his environment is constantly explored in Münster in new and exciting ways.

25 Botanischer Garten der Westfälischen Wilhelms-Universität Münster

Münster University Botanical Garden

Since 1803 the Botanical Garden of Münster University has been showing, among other things, the world of indigenous plants and themed gardens such as the Pharmaceutical Garden or the Smell-and-Touch Garden. Plants from tropical and sub-tropical climate zones are presented in a natural environment in the hothouses. The wealth of material ranges from jungle landscapes with beneficial tropical plants to the plants of Africa and the Canaries and to carnivorous plants.

28 Mineralogisches Museum der Westfälischen Wilhelms-Universität Münster
Mineralogical Museum of the Westphalian Wilhelm University in Münster

The collections in the Mineralogical Museum (crystals and rocks) provide a comprehensive representation of crystalline and amorphous objects from nature and technology in order to support teaching and research. At the same time all visitors to the museum are shown the world of minerals and rocks in all its diversity.

A multimedia computer is available to any interested visitor, giving detailed information on these subjects: a) Minerals in mythology and medicine, b) The Ice Age in Münster – stone witnesses from Gievenbeck, c) Born in fire – volcanos and volcanic rocks, together with animations and videos about volcanic eruptions, d) Natural building stones to be found in Münster. All this information may also be ordered on a CD-ROM at cost price.

30 LWL-Museum für Naturkunde Westfälisches Landesmuseum mit Planetarium

LWL Museum of Natural History
Westphalian Museum with Planetarium

There is one place in Münster where it is possible to experience heaven on earth, with over nine thousand artificial stars, and to journey through time in seconds to the Middle Ages on earth:

The LWL-Museum of Natural History with its large-scale planetarium in the local recreation area of the Lake Aa park – very close to the zoo – is the right address for stargazers, dinosaur lovers and anyone who is interested in nature and mankind and wants to know how the world works.

31 Westfälisches Pferdemuseum im Allwetterzoo Münster Westphalian Horse Museum at the Münster All-Weather Zoo

The Westphalian Horse Museum, opened in autumn 2002 has provided the Münster All-Weather Zoo with a further attraction. A thousand square metres of exhibition space in the museum's new building are dedicated to the the natural and cultural history of the horse and of equestrianism in Westphalia. Historic objects combined with modern media techniques and interactive stations provide insights into the changing relationship between man and horse from early times to the present day. With exhibits like a horse grave from the early middle ages, the stuffed skin of the celebrated stud horse "Polydor" or the installation with a pit pony, the exhibition casts an unusual light on the subject of the horse. The adjoining training-ring "Hippomaxx" serves as a forum for events concerning the subject of the horse. You can find the current programme on the home page of the Westphalian Horse Museum.
